Do YOU HAVE A LOT OF READING FOR THE SEMESTER?

Are you concerned about your reading load?

Do you wish you had a few key reading strategies that could help you retain what you have read?

Do you wish you could read faster while still retaining the information you have read?

If you answered “yes” to these questions please consider one of the following two-credit courses: Student Development 205 or Student Development 305.

Student Development 205: Success in College Reading

Comprehend, retain, and speed up reading of academic texts. Reading strategies and speeding up taught in a traditional classroom setting. Students practice the strategies both in and outside of class. Students practice the strategies on their homework from other courses. This course is especially good for freshmen, sophomores, and any student who feels overwhelmed by the reading loads of their college classes. Students must have at least a grade 13 (Freshman College) reading level.
Do YOU HAVE A LOT OF Complex READING FOR THE SEMESTER?

Feel Like You Are Bricked in by all the Reading You Need to Do In College?

Student Development 305 “Advanced Reading Strategies for College Success” Might Be Able to Help

Learn strategies designed to increase speed while improving retention. Learn and practice critical and creative ways to process texts and prepare for graduate entrance exams. Strategies from 205 will be taught along with eight additional strategies. Students will use homework from other courses to learn strategies. Information and practice are covered at a much faster pace than 205. 305 is taught via a flipped classroom model of teaching.